

Book Week

The children celebrated Book Week by being fully involved in many cross-curricular activities based on a book which is also a movie of their choice. Scholastics also came in to sell their books for three days. Thank you to everyone who donated a book to their class or the library. On the last day of the week we had the costume parade, with some fantastic ideas. Children looked fabulous and it made the judging of the costume competition very difficult.

During the week we held competitions for book marks, posters and photographs of reading in a strange place. The most popular competition was the best door design. The children worked tirelessly with their teachers to transform their class doors into a book theme.
